

Privacy Policy

E-Learninglab is committed to ensuring that your privacy is protected. Any information provided by you to E-Learninglab, by which you can be identified, will only be used in accordance with this privacy policy.

E-Learninglab may change this policy as and when necessary. It is your responsibility to check this privacy policy periodically to ensure you agree with any changes.

Your consent

By using this site, you agree to the terms of this Privacy Policy. Whenever you submit information via this site, you consent to the collection, use, and disclosure of that information in accordance with this Privacy Policy.

What information we collect

You can browse our website without providing any personal information, however if you would like the enhanced website experience, you will need to register with us. When registering on our site, we may require some or all of the following information:

- username
- e-mail address
- password
- age
- location

You may, however, visit E-Learninglab without providing personally identifiable information about you. E-Learninglab, however, uses Google Analytics to collect potentially personally-identifying information. Some or all of the following information may be collected:

- Internet Protocol (IP) address
- geographical location
- interests
- demographics
- browser type and version
- operating system
- referral source
- length of visit, page views, website navigation and any other related browsing activity

What we do with the information we collect

The information you provide to E-Learninglab is required for, but not limited to, the following reasons:

- internal record keeping
- access to the E-Learninglab.com website
- account management
- improving our services
- conducting market research
- sending occasional company news, updates, related product or service information, etc.

Internet-based transfers

Unfortunately, the transmission of information via the internet is not completely secure. Although we will do our best to protect your personal data, we cannot guarantee the security of your data transmitted to the TSRG site; any transmission is at your own risk. Once we have received your information, we will use strict procedures and security features to try to prevent unauthorised access. Given that the Internet is a global environment, using it to collect and process personal data necessarily involves the transmission of data on an international basis. This means for instance that data you pass to us may be transferred to and processed outside the European Economic Area (EEA). By submitting your personal data, you agree to this transfer, storing or processing. We will take all steps reasonably necessary to ensure that your data is treated securely and in accordance with this policy. By communicating electronically with us, you acknowledge and agree to our processing of personal data in this way.

Security

We are committed to ensuring that any information you provide to E-Learninglab is secure. In order to prevent unauthorised access or disclosure, we have put in place suitable physical, electronic and managerial procedures to safeguard and secure the information we collect.

How we use cookies and IP addresses

E-Learninglab uses small text files, called cookies, to store information in your web browser. The information stored may include preferences, session identification, HTTP information, and IP address.

You can set your browser to not receive cookies, but this may limit your ability to use E-Learninglab.

IP addresses of computers used to visit E-Learninglab are stored in our database. This includes when first registering for an account, managing your account details, writing a private or public message or performing any other transaction which results in data being transferred to or from your computer and the website in question.

Your IP address is not visible to the public at any time.

Links to other websites

E-Learninglab contains links to external websites. These third party sites have separate and independent privacy policies. We therefore have no responsibility or liability for the content and activities of these linked sites. Nonetheless, we seek to protect the integrity of our site and welcome any feedback about these sites.

Controlling your personal information

E-Learninglab will not sell, distribute or lease your personal information to third parties unless we have your explicit permission or are required by law to do so. We may use your personal information to send you security information, updates, or other information pertaining to E-Learninglab, or your account.

You may ask us to provide details of the personal information we hold about you, under the Data Protection Act 1998. To request this information, please email us. If you discover any of the information E-Learninglab holds for you is incorrect or incomplete, that you are unable to change yourself, please contact us as soon as possible so the necessary changes can be made.

Contact Us

If there are any questions regarding this privacy policy you may contact us at contact@e-learninglab.com